THEY WILL WAIT.

Bankers Will Loan City Money When Municipal Tangle Is Unraveled.

The purchase of the lands needed for the additional rerminal facilities for the Santa Fe is tied up for nearly a week at least. The bankers of the city who promised to loan $55,000 to the committee to make the purchases have come to the conduction that $50,000 is too large a sum of money to let out while the present municipal election tangle is in the ent municipal election tangle is in the First Ever Seen in Essex County, N.J.

"Don't think that we refuse the money," said P. I. Bonchrake to a State Journal reporter this morning. "The bankers interested thought it would be safer to wait until the supreme court arts upon the question, and in view of the fact that the tine will not be very far distant when the matter is finally settled, we thought it better to wait. The money will then be forthcoming. It will be needed then as much as now, for bonds will have to be gone through with again, which will necessarily take considerable time."

which covers the claim and the cost of the action.

Papers in the case were first served upon Mr. Gould in April, 1800. It was alleged in the complaint that Mrs Gould had ordered made from imported material 15 garments, for which she had refused to pay on the grounds that they did not fit and that exorbitant charges had been made by the plaintiff. The dressmakers recited that every effort had been made to please Mrs. Gould and that her complaint was unreasonable. They demanded a trial by jury, in order that the quality of their work might be put to the test in open court.

Mrs. Gould, feeling that advantage had been taken of her position as a bride and the wife of a millionaire, decided to contest the suit.

The first social event of the meeting was the reception in the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James A. McGoolgie. Their daughter, Miss Stelia McGonigle is the chairman of the social entertainment committee and they kindly offered their elegant home for the affair.

The entire house was charmingly decorated, the prevailing colors being green and white. The dining room was one of the most attractive spots in the house. On a square of Mexican drawn work on the polished table rested a cutglass vase of bride roses, while extending around the edge of the table were festoons of southern smilax and carnations. In front of the mantle was suspended the letters K. S. S. F. done in green and white. Snowballs and foliage banked the mantle and sideboard. An orchestra stationed in the upper hall played during the evening. As the guests arrived they were greeted by Mrs. McGonigle, assisted by the officers of the federation. A punch table in the albrary was in charge of Miss McGonigle and Miss Marie Kelly. This reception was the largest and one of the most pleasant affairs that will be given for the visiting women.

The largest delegation present at the meeting is the one that went from Topeka Wednesday morning.
